Exposing Nature’s Art

November 2-4, 2012

JOIN BRAD HILL, award-winning photographer, writer, lecturer and conservationist, for an informative and inspiring weekend in Kamloops, British Columbia.

FRIDAY evening Brad will share his personal vision for the Great Bear Rainforest, the largest tract of temperate rainforest left on earth. His vision will be told through dialogue and incredibly beautiful imagery.

SATURDAY’s workshop is devoted to what goes into planning and executing a successful nature photoshoot. Most of the day will be spent in the field with Brad.

SUNDAY will focus on post processing, Brad’s so-called ‘missing link’ for most nature photographers. Bring your computer or laptop with your post-processing production software.

All events will take place at the picturesque Thompson Rivers University campus.
